to have a definite order on the subject from first. To say that permission will be given but yet the officer may have to lose pay if his absence entail extra charge, is not the sort of answer an officer expects & is entitled to. The first should decide whether extra charge will be incurred in the particular case or not, and tell the officer plainly whether he can have the privilege or not. If the officer has to lose pay, it will be a case of leave without allowance & the question of offering or prefixing holidays will not arise. In fact if an officer loses pay in a case of prefixing, this leave without pay will affect his other leave & such leave may become inadmissible. It will thus be seen that the order as drafted is somewhat obscure and confused and will not serve any useful purpose.

8. The easiest course is to pass an order to the effect that as officers applying for leave cannot themselves always judge whether the conditions of art 145 necessary for affixing or prefixing holidays will be satisfied, permission to affix or prefix, if necessary the concession is desired, should be applied for at the same time as the leave. The sanctioning authority when sanctioning the leave will grant or not grant the concession of affixing or prefixing after considering the circumstances of the case with reference to the conditions of art 145 M.S.R. The permission should be gazetted along with the leave in the case of gazetted officers.

9. If the above rule be followed and the administrative dept correctly apply the rule there will be no such difficulties as in the case of Mrs Sparkes & Katharine Mrs.

In cases in which the officer cannot be spared from duty without extra cost, he will have to take such leave as he may be entitled to under the leave rules even during the period of the Dasara holidays.

The procedure suggested involves no extra work and gives a definite order in each case to the officer concerned by requiring the authority sanctioning the leave & consequent arrangements to assume due responsibility. To allow such authorities to evade that responsibility by leaving officers in doubt & then marketing them in allowances is not fair.

The Financial Secretary's draft appears to meet all such cases fully as it would apply to all cases of prefixing or affixing holidays to the leave applied for. Rather than leave the applicants in doubt as to the exact bearing of art. 145 MSR on these cases, the applicant will make a definite application & get definite orders re the prefixing or affixing of holidays. It is also incidentally brought out in the draft order that Dasara holidays would be no holidays for some officers.

The Financial Secretary's draft may be approved.

Submitted to His Highness

As inconvenience has arisen by misapprehen sion regarding the nature of the Dasara holidays, I proposed in the draft marked A that Deputy Commissioners, Heads of Departments and other officers whose duties require their attendance at the Dasara Representative Assembly should not regard the Dasara holidays as holidays which could be tacked on to other leave under Article 145 of the Mysore Service Regulations. Any permission that may be granted as a special case to prefix or affix the Dasara holidays to other leave must be understood as subject to the qualification that the officer concerned shall be liable to forfeit his emoluments for the period of the Dasara holidays when his absence entails extra charge on the Government.

O R D E R -

The Government of His Highness the Maharaja have observed that some misapprehension exists regarding the privilege of affixing or prefixing holidays to leave which may be availed of by officers in certain circumstances under Article 145, Mysore Service Regulations. In the first place it must be distinctly understood that the question of affixing or prefixing can only arise when the day or days under consideration are really holidays, i.e. non-working days for the officer concerned. In this view it may not be ordinarily possible to regard the Dasara holidays as holidays in the case of Deputy Commissioners, Heads of Departments and other officers who are required to be on duty at Dasara Durbars and at the Representative Assembly.

2. Then again the officers concerned may not themselves be always in a position to judge whether the conditions of Article

145 necessary for affixing or prefixing holidays are satisfied. The Government are therefore pleased to rule that permission to affix or prefix holidays if the concession is desired, should be applied for by the officer concerned at the same time as the leave is applied for. The sanctioning authority when passing orders on the leave application will also decide about the concession of affixing or prefixing holidays after considering the circumstances of the case with reference to the conditions of Article 145.

3. The permission will be communicated to the officer along with the grant of leave and any special arrangement as regards the change during the holidays affixed or prefixed that may be necessary will also be communicated to the parties concerned. The grant of the concession and special arrangements, if any, during the holidays will be gazetted along with the leave in the case of gazetted officers.
